

Message 02

How separation came about in the original creation. Why many people feel uncomfortable in their bodies, which do not correspond to their sexual nature. How the visible and thus material universe came into being during the Big Bang. Why churches and religious communities can never lead to the kingdom of heaven of benevolent people connected to God. How does the original cosmic energy affect people? How will the return to subtle matter take place

? Once again, the Spirit of Love, in its infinite and creative love from the original source of all being, conveys this message to all who wish to expand their consciousness, to kind and God-fearing people, to those who seek a deeper meaning in their lives. May your souls vibrate higher as you read this message, and may it awaken in you a longing for home, the heavenly home, in the heavenly zenith.

The visible and therefore material universe has not always existed. There was a beginning, and there will be an end after material time has run its course. No one knows exactly when this will happen, and that is a good thing. The people on planet Earth, as well as the inhabitants of many other planets in distant galaxies, have one thing in common: they all come from the same heavenly home, where they once lived together in peace, respect, gentleness, humility, impersonality, and equality. There is an indescribable connection of love between them, but also a subtle energy that originates from the original cosmic energies and is unknown to the world as we know it. This original cosmic energy was and still is so powerful that, at the request of those who longed for a different life, after a democratic and fair vote involving our beloved deity, a considerable part of this energy was granted to them so that they could realize their dream of worlds in which the exact opposite of what exists in the heavenly home exists. This caused deep pain to the spiritual parents of creation, the primordial father and mother, as well as to parents on Earth who must let their children go their own way in order to gain their own experiences in the world. Even if parents do not always approve of certain decisions made by their children, as these do not always correspond to their hopes and wishes, parents still let their children go their own way. They may be good advisors, but they respect their children's free will.

Our original creator parents form a duo of light-filled subtle bodies in the seven-dimensional heaven, in a state of purity that you humans cannot yet imagine. They live on the highest level of purity and consciousness expansion that can exist in the heavenly world. It is the highest level of knowledge. This developed during pre-creation, i.e., creation before the original creation. Even before the creation of the material and thus visible cosmos, our original Father and our original Mother already possessed an immeasurable potential for love, which enabled them to merge intimately with each other thanks to their light bodies. In this way, they experienced the most intense happiness that you humans can only feel for brief moments, even during the most intense sexual union. The physical body forms an insurmountable barrier that prevents both souls from merging within themselves. The feeling of happiness that sexual union evokes is also determined by physical desire for one another. But that, too, is an integral part of life on Earth. Even with the greatest love and affection for one another, such a feeling of happiness cannot last as long as when the light bodies merge. Can you imagine returning to such a state of purity, insight, and expanded consciousness? The joy will be so great that the heavens will rejoice when one day that which has sought its own path returns to the essence of every human being.

In this merging of the light bodies, the male and female parts of the creator parents were transferred in equal parts into a new, developing light body. How is this to be understood? It is about the male handling of the original cosmic energies and the loving distribution of these energies by the female part, the loving and caring element. These qualities are passed on in the spiritual creation of new light bodies. However, one part always predominates, either the female or the male. You, dear people, are familiar with this on Earth as well. The responsibility to acquire and manage all the things necessary for life and to distribute fairly what everyone in the family needs for a carefree life. It is the male or female element that shapes the soul. Both abilities are present in the soul, but these distributions are not always so precise on one side or the other. A shift may occur, leading to the dominance of one or the other characteristic in the souls during the process of incarnation into a physical body, and thus the characteristic of the soul, male or female, no longer corresponds to the gender of the physical body. This can be explained by life experiences from previous incarnations. These are stored in the body's cells in the form of the subconscious and are not lost. When death leads to the separation of the physical body and the light body, also called the soul, this information is transmitted to the soul via fine energy channels, fine threads, and returns to eternity. It can be decisive for the next incarnation. Therefore, in the reincarnation of the soul, the gender of the corresponding human body, whether female or male, does not always match. This is sometimes a very tragic situation for people who are searching for their sexual identity and are ashamed of it in front of others. Only then can they feel comfortable again and feel confirmed in their choice, depending on which sexual partner they are attracted to, in order to be able to live again as they wish. This can go so far that they no longer feel comfortable in their incarnated body and have difficulty finding harmony between their soul and their body. Unfortunately, there is often a lack of deep understanding to comprehend these people in their essence, which is sad and tragic. However, this does not change the state of the soul. It must reorient itself in its new physical being. Therefore, it is important to treat these people with respect and without prejudice. They must find their way back on Earth. You see, life on planet Earth is fraught with many difficulties. That is why the creation of the visible universe can never be God's will. "God within me" unites these two abilities, namely the ability to manage the original cosmic energies from the original central sun and the ability to distribute these energies, whose effects extend into the visible and material cosmos, FAIRLY. All creative experiences that have ever been made are stored in the divinity. Loving divinity gladly passes them on when asked sincerely. They serve to build and sustain life, which is exactly the opposite of what humans are currently experiencing on Earth. The separation that took place long ago in creation occurred only at the request of the light bodies, who no longer wanted to live this coexistence within the framework of a democratic vote. Our original spiritual parents wanted to avoid being worshipped and revered by their spiritual descendants. This awareness and desire developed since pre-creation. In order for the administration and distribution of all cosmic energies to continue to function, these qualities were transferred to our deity at the time of its creation, which all heavenly beings originally agreed to after a democratic vote. God is a neutral, impersonal, loving, understanding, and merciful being, endowed with an inexhaustible supply of cosmic energy, which, thanks to its nature, I AM GOD, never ceases to store and release energy. Thanks to its impersonal nature, which is the same for all inhabitants of heaven, the deity is in a state of bliss and indescribable gratitude towards all inhabitants of heaven, so that the eternal cycle of receiving the original cosmic energies from the original central sun, their return to the original central sun, and their return to the deity will never end for all ETERNITY. The Deity never wants to be worshipped, because otherwise this equality with all inhabitants of Heaven would no longer exist.

This democratic and thus uniform harmonization of the equality of being, in which no heavenly being places itself above another, already included the creative separation of beings who had accepted this but could never come to terms with this process internally. But the experiences of our spiritual parents during the pre-creation led them to avoid a patriarchal attitude, as you know it in earthly life. Their most ardent desire was that all inhabitants of heaven should be free to decide about their heavenly life without consulting their original Father and Mother. The spirit of love in the Godhead was to be the loving administrator and advisor in all matters. This ensured peaceful coexistence in absolute equality. God is not a being who wants to be worshipped with reverence. Can you, people of good will and people connected to God, now better understand why God should neither be honored nor feared, as is often preached in religious communities and churches? Those who preach this elevate themselves to a position of authority in which only they have access to God's wisdom and truth, and in which only the path to the kingdom of heaven, which they, the princes of the church and the supreme leaders of the church, point out through themselves, would lead to heaven. But this is a tragic error that continues to this day. God never chose servants of God and princes of the church to guide and lead believers.

Enormous amounts of original cosmic energy were required to create a material and thus visible universe out of the eternal spiritual creation. Scientists believe that there was nothing before the material cosmos, but this is a great error that continues to this day. The fallen beings, i.e., the heavenly beings who wanted separation, were provided with an enormous amount of original cosmic energy.

The fallen beings could only realize their plan to create new material worlds by combining all the energies they had received from the original Central Sun. This was a gigantic transformation of cosmic energies into matter in an empty space that we know as the universe. This concentrated amount of original cosmic energy was compressed into a tiny particle. Only through an initial ignition, the so-called Big Bang, could space, time, and matter form. The physical laws that were to replace the laws of the Celestials now came into effect. From the moment this initial ignition took place, energy steadily decreased, from the first second in which space as we know it today developed over billions of years. And this process continues to this day. Can you imagine what it meant to create a material world from an immaterial world? Without this gigantic Big Bang, it would never have been possible. But the fallen beings were aware that this was a temporary creation. The material creation is not eternal, and when time has run out, everything visible will be transformed back into immaterial matter. This process is already underway.

In order to understand a small part of the origin and development of the material cosmos, the universe, it took people who had, and still have, the ability to explore these physical laws in their entirety. Their knowledge is already very advanced, but they will never be able to understand the origin of all being with the help of physical laws and mathematical formulas without expanding their consciousness. The subtle, heavenly universe cannot be calculated even with the help of very complex mathematical formulas. Nor can the deity be explained physically or mathematically. The material and thus visible cosmos did not arise from nothing, but from the concentration of gigantic amounts of primitive cosmic energies, which were compressed into a tiny part of a vacuum until the first ignition, i.e., until the Big Bang. This is how the visible universe came into being. The effects of this gigantic explosion can still be measured today in the form of gravitational waves. Over billions of years, billions of stars, solar systems, and entire galaxies have developed. However, the lifespan of stars, including that of your sun in your solar system, is limited. The enormous amount of energy released during this process, the Big Bang, weakens over time and has been steadily decreasing since the first second when the Big Bang created time, space, and matter. The conversion of the original cosmic energies into visible energy created the conditions for the formation of stars, solar systems, and countless galaxies. But the physical laws and forces that were at work in the creation of matter have nothing to do with the heavenly laws and principles of life. These can never be calculated or explained mathematically.

So you kind-hearted people can understand that the Earth cannot be the final resting place of humanity. At the end of every human life, only the empty shell, the lifeless physical body, remains, and the soul, the true body of light, returns to eternity. The place where the soul resides depends on the extent to which the person was able to change their consciousness and how far they progressed in their spiritual maturity. Please understand that this has nothing to do with religion, churches, or religious communities. These bind believers and pious people to their teachings and scriptures, which have nothing to do with Christ and God. Many of their teachings are as rigid and hardened as the walls of their churches. In many churches, the crucified Jesus is the visible and admonishing sign of salvation, forgiveness of sins, and Christian teaching for believers. But the crossbeam of the cross on which Jesus sacrificed his life has shifted to the center of the upper beam after his earthly death and thus his return to his heavenly being. Understand well, you people of good will and those close to God, do not focus your gaze of faith and the expansion of your inner consciousness on the crucified Jesus in the churches. Ask the Deity for a heartfelt and intimate connection with HIM through the core of your soul, the heart of your soul. Ask Him to help you better understand the heavenly principles of life and the laws of heavenly life and to anchor them within you. In this way, your soul will rise to a higher vibration. The Deity is the giver of the original cosmic life energy, which increasingly supplies your soul and thus your physical body with energy. You can imagine it like this: the original cosmic energy is an energy that does not diminish or weaken over time. It fills you so much that all the cells of your body are permeated by it, which manifests itself in a pleasant, pulsating feeling of joy, warmth, and vitality that flows through your body. At the same time, you are under the protection of the light beings of the heavenly zenith. Your radiance cannot be hidden, because the more your soul vibrates, the more it spreads throughout your physical body and, depending on your spiritual maturity, radiates a light similar to the colors of the rainbow. Your fellow human beings will find this pleasant and enjoy being in your company. Be an energetic support for your fellow human beings and your environment. The original cosmic energy works in all directions; it is bipolar and thus raises your energy centers, also known as chakras, to a higher vibration.

This bipolar energy goes in different directions, creating a field of tension. This allows you to use this energy not only for yourself, but also to pass it on to benevolent people in your environment. But in deep gratitude, humility, and impersonality of your being, this energy returns, so to speak, to the deity and thus to the original central sun, the source of all cosmic life. In this way, you are a great support for planet Earth. Can you follow this in your mind? If so, you will soon be able to feel this joy within yourself.

The material cosmos with its space and time will not exist forever, for it was never the intention of the heavenly zenith to create a visible universe. The visible cosmos will return to subtle matter. This process has already begun. But this is no longer happening through the Big Bang. Your scientists can already observe this process of return. With their sophisticated space telescopes, they can observe black holes in the galaxy. But this process should neither frighten nor disturb you. Not a single soul will be left behind. Your eternal heavenly home, the cradle of all being, awaits you with impatience and joy. But please make a sincere effort to mature spiritually in humility, modesty, and equality. Do not elevate yourselves above your fellow human beings; treat them with love and understanding and with divine patience. Then your return, which will also be your HOME COMING, will fill you with happiness and joy for all ETERNITY.

In the love of our Divinity.
