

Message 08 (April 2025)

What factors other than greenhouse gases are responsible for climate change?

A spiritual appeal to those in power and political leaders, and how they should fundamentally rethink their actions for the benefit of themselves and all of humanity.

Dear peace-loving people, who seek nothing else in this world but inner peace, who are of good will and want to walk your path of life in order to return to where it all began, to your home, to the heart of the universe.

Dear peace-loving people, who seek nothing else in this world but inner peace, who are of good will and want to walk your path of life in order to return to where it all began, to your heavenly home.

Due to the current world situation and climate change on planet Earth, the beloved deity, the spirit of love within me, wishes to convey this message to you.

The current climate change on planet Earth is worrying many people and causing them to have frightening thoughts.

Added to this is a wealth of information from various media outlets, disseminated by scientists and politicians. The greenhouse effect is often, if not almost always, cited as the cause of these changes.

This is quite understandable, as most climatologists and scientists do not understand the invisible connections deeply enough. Their conclusions are based on the same foundations, and people are afraid. Many well-meaning people are sincerely trying to do their best to counteract this and follow the guidelines often imposed on them by politicians. But you must know that Earth, your home planet, is a living planet.

During its formation, after an initial phase of subtle matter, matter gradually condensed as a result of reprogramming after the creation of the visible universe.

The subtle cosmic energies of creation could never have formed a universe of dense matter, and that was never the intention of the inhabitants of heaven.

The Spirit of Love does not wish to revisit the topic of the creation of the visible universe after the Big Bang and therefore refers readers to Message 2. That would take too long and would be too complicated. The Spirit of Love does not wish to revisit the topic of the creation of the visible universe after the Big Bang here and therefore refers readers to Message 2. That would take too long and be too tedious.

The formation of your planet was a dramatic event accompanied by tremendous forces.

Numerous cosmic collisions with other celestial bodies were necessary for the Earth to form and develop as you know it today and as you live on it.

The original cosmic energies that were emitted by other celestial bodies were absorbed by the Earth and formed the planet's crust.

It took numerous cosmic collisions with other celestial bodies for the Earth to form and develop as you know it today and as you live on it. The original cosmic energies that emanated from the original central sun were never intended to form a solid universe. Solid matter cannot easily form from subtle matter. Before they clumped together into tiny particles and condensed until they were discharged in the Big Bang and transformed, creating atoms that gradually condensed under the influence of increasing inertia, they had to be reprogrammed by the fallen beings

. They knew exactly what they were doing and what their intentions were. They were aware that from that moment on, they would lose the abilities they had enjoyed until then in their heavenly life. But they accepted this willingly, just to create worlds according to their ideas, which no longer have anything to do with the principles and laws of heavenly life. They want to create their own laws and principles because they no longer wanted to accept the unified, peaceful, impersonal life characterized by humility and modesty.

In the spiritual world of creation, the bipolar energy particles are highly reactive, and the inhabitants of heaven have acquired the ability to handle them with great caution over time, with the help of the beloved deity, their help, and their loving teachings.

A condensation of the original cosmic energies is neither necessary nor possible due to the high reactivity of their individual particles.

In your world, materials are not easily transformed due to their condensation. In many cases, they can only be transformed by violent forces such as explosion, fire, water, and air so that something new can be created through new combinations of their atoms.

This means that what was initially condensed by vibrational inertia can only be partially dissolved by an enormous force in order to then be recondensed according to the required materials. The additional effort and energy required, such as the heat generated by fire, are enormous and demanding.

You see, on your planet, in the world of solid matter, it is not easy to create something new without additional tools. The human body is not compatible, that is, it is not in harmony with its solid environment. Therefore, there is an increased risk of injury from accidents of all kinds. So how much effort must one expend to create new things from solid materials that humans cannot easily transform themselves without exerting force, depending on the origin of the material to be processed.

The heavenly inhabitants, in their wonderfully luminous light bodies, are able to transform their subtle materials without tools. Thanks to their permanently high vibration and purity, they can connect with the subtle materials to create new things according to their wishes and ideas. There is a correspondence between their vibration and that of the subtle materials.

All materials known to humans have their origin in the subtle world in terms of their components, the atoms. However, there is no inertia there, and the elements of the heavenly world are therefore reactive and adaptable when transformed or assembled in modesty, humility, and impersonality. It is the original subtle essence within them that enables them to shape their environment to their liking and to furnish the houses in which they live so that they can live there happily. Their work is not laborious as it is on Earth. Their creative and transformative work is always done in harmony with the other inhabitants of heaven. There is no competition as you know it on Earth. Everything is in harmony and unison. The joy of each new creation is great. The elements of nature radiate from within according to their purity and vibration. See, when you look at a finely cut gemstone, it must be exposed to a suitable light so that it can reflect the light in its various spectra. At night, therefore, it is pointless to admire a gemstone, as it cannot emit any light. The situation is different in the subtle world of purity and light shining from within.

Sunlight or an artificial light source is needed to reflect the light of a diamond, the most valuable of all gemstones. This requires a correct and skillful cut, i.e., working with suitable tools. They are then assigned a corresponding value so that they can be marketed. They live in a sad and gloomy world where all things must be valued in terms of what they can give in return, and where the rich and wealthy can live off their work, their wealth, and the exploitation of others. This is a sad situation that cannot be changed.

If you can understand these things deeply and clearly, you will gradually realize what kind of world you live in and that it is worthwhile to recognize your mistakes, correct them, and refine your character traits with the help of God, who, through your soul.

The original Central Sun is the original reservoir of all existing elements in their subtle, spiritual form. Everything that exists in the visible universe has its origin in the original Central Sun. It is the heavenly zenith and forms the center of the subtle and material universes. What transformation of all existing elements and what forces were necessary to create a universe that functions completely differently from the spiritual universe with its diverse worlds inhabited by beings who differ according to their state of consciousness and spiritual awakening?

In order for the primordial elements to fulfill their diverse functions in the visible universe starting from the original central sun in accordance with the law of inertia and their progressive condensation from subtle to solid matter, they must be constantly supplied with energy from the original central sun. In contrast to the spiritual world, however, this does not consist of two strands, but only of a single one. It is less energy-rich and suitable for solid matter. The return to the original central sun is therefore much slower. It is constantly regenerated in the original central sun and is available to the universe again in the form of renewed energy.

Without this energy source, your star, the sun, could not function. The conversion of hydrogen into helium would not be possible without the energy flow from the original central sun, even though this process is not visible to the naked eye or with space telescopes. There is a reciprocal relationship between all natural suns, their planets, and the original central sun. Everything is finely interconnected.

Your star, the sun, not only provides your home planet with light and heat, the sources of life, but also with unipolar energies. As a living planet, the Earth depends on these unipolar energies from the Sun.

In order for the Earth to absorb this energy and transmit it into an energy field surrounding it, it must be charged and stored like a battery.

This is mainly done through the mineral resources and raw materials that are present in the Earth. But why is this so? Mineral resources of different origins have their own vibration. When the energy emitted by the sun is stored in the various minerals of the Earth, it is returned to the Earth's energy field.

This enables the smooth functioning of an ecosystem, and the four elements of the Earth interact harmoniously in their respective functions. Your climate depends on it.

For decades, however, the earth has been ruthlessly exploited through the incessant extraction of crude oil and gas and the ever-deepening exploitation of mineral resources of all kinds.

The water in the depths of the earth is being mercilessly pumped out, seriously disrupting the natural cooling system. These processes rob the planet of the vital vibrations of all its natural resources. This is comparable to a highly efficient battery for your vehicle from which you remove the elements necessary for its proper operation

It can then no longer recharge and thus no longer supply the vehicle with energy. If you were to constantly extract blood, minerals and water from a human being, it would inevitably lead to their death. The same applies to the Earth.

People driven by greed are constantly trying to extract valuable minerals from the Earth to use them for other lucrative purposes. In doing so, humans are robbing the Earth of any opportunity to store the energy emitted by the sun, which leads to vibrational inertia. But don't forget that when chaos reigns underground, it also reigns above ground. And indeed, chaotic conditions prevail in the waters and on the continents.

The Earth is therefore no longer able to maintain its original vibration, which has a negative effect on the Earth's climate, with the dramatic consequences that you are now aware of.
